

Segmenting your products:

It is always good to understand what your high and low performing products are. Based on this information you can look at strategies to actively target prospective clients who are in the market for these products.

